Join CEC for a White House Dialogue on Education for Students with Disabilities

Follow the conversation by calling in on Wednesday, Feb. 22, 2012, 11 a.m.

A small group of CEC members, along with a group of members from the National Center for Learning Disabilities, has been invited to participate in a meeting with leaders from the White House Domestic Policy Council and the Department of Education Office of Special Education and Rehabilitation Services.

CEC is pleased to open up this meeting, via conference call, to its membership. The call will focus on President Obama's State of the Union Address and his Fiscal Year 2013 budget as they relate to education for students with disabilities.

CEC members may listen in via conference call, and may be able to submit a question about issues facing the field of special education during a question-and-answer session. Don't miss this opportunity to hear White House and U.S. Department of Education leaders discuss a series of ideas around special education, including graduation, teachers, and more.

In order to participate, you must RSVP by completing the web form at whitehouse.gov.
